

GLOBAL SECURITY INSTITUTE

WARMONGERING WITHOUT REPRESENTATION Unilateralism is Not the American Way

By Robert T. Grey Jr.
Wednesday, January 15, 2003
San Francisco Chronicle

Sept. 11, 2001 focused the attention of the world on the threat of global terrorism, and the international community responded collectively to the threat it posed.

But the tools for collective international action are being undermined by a small, radical and vociferous minority in the United States. It is difficult to see what sort of mandate this cult of radical unilateralists has, though many of them hold influential but unelected positions within the Bush administration.

Click here for complete article.

Ambassador Robert T. Grey Jr. is Director of the Washington-based Bipartisan Security Group, a program of the Global Security Institute. He previously served as US Representative to the Conference on Disarmament in Geneva under the Clinton and current Bush administrations. Click here to learn more about GSI's Bipartisan Security Group.

Close Window